Our last regular blog post

Posted on 8 November 2011

This will be our last regular blog post. We would like to thank everyone who has provided a comment and had their say. This blog was something of a first for the ABS and has been an effective way to interact with a wide audience. Hearing your thoughts on this topic has been rewarding experience for all the MAP team and especially for me.

I hope the ABS will continue to use blogs in the future to communicate with the Australian public.

While we will not be putting up regular posts on this blog anymore, we will continue to monitor it. So you can still leave comments and contribute to this national conversation.

The findings from our consultation will be released in a report late 2012.

I'd like to thank everyone for their contribution on behalf of the whole MAP team.

Serhat
